

2018 Global Citizenship Symposium: Immigration

April 6-17, 2018

As global and glocal phenomenon, immigration is not just the topic of highly charged political debates, but also the site of crucial struggles for human and civil rights. This year's Symposium offers many opportunities for conversations, debates, and direct actions that highlight importance of these struggles, especially in relation to education, economy and business, identity and immigrant experience. Join us for interdisciplinary panels, workshops, exhibits, film screenings, and hands-on activities, and learn how immigration impacts Stetson campus and nearby communities.

SCHEDULE
Friday, April 6	3 PM – 4 PM	Special Session: Global Citizenship Symposium (last panel at the Colloquium on Teaching and Learning Innovation) - LBC 108 The panelists will discuss ways in which Stetson University can re-imagine its academic mission and commitment to global citizenship through immigration lens as well as challenges that arise in this process.
Saturday, April 7	2 PM – 4 PM	*Campus screening and discussion of "Indivisible" (HOPE Community Center) – duPont Ball Library 25 "Indivisible" is a documentary about Dreamers and their struggle to gain rights. Evelyn, one of the women featured in the documentary, will be present and there will be time for Q&A following the screening
Monday, April 9	5 PM – 6:30 PM	*ACIREMA interactive simulation - Elizabeth Hall 308, 315, 316, 322 ACIREMA is a simulation game that encourages understanding and empathy among domestic individuals for all the efforts an international student must go through to succeed in the immigration process to the U.S.
	8AM to close	*Exhibit: Immigrant Art &amp; Literature – first floor of the duPont-Ball Library Cultural Credit available between 5 PM – 7 PM
Tuesday, April 10	1 PM – 2 PM	*Panel: Children's Literature and Immigration – Davis 102 Learn about how children's literature showcases immigration.
	5:30 PM -6:45 PM	*Arepas, Tacos, and More: Foodways of the Latin America Diaspora – The Rinker Environmental Learning Center This is an experiential learning/exhibit or better said an invitation to our kitchen! In this session you will enjoy some homemade Latin American food and also learn about the Latin American culinary traditions that are making their mark on the U.S. gastronomic scene, specifically in Central Florida.
	8AM to close	*Exhibit: Immigrant Art &amp; Literature – first floor of the duPont-Ball Library Cultural Credit available between 9 AM – 11AM

*Cultural Credit available

2018 Global Citizenship Symposium: Immigration

April 6-17, 2018

Wednesday, April 11	12 PM – 1 PM	Common Treasure: celebrating The U.N. International Day of Peace at Stetson University – Davis 208
	3 PM - 4:30 PM	*Campus screening and discussion: “Dalya’s Other Country” - duPont-Ball Library 25 “Dalya's Other Country” tells the nuanced story of members of a family displaced by the Syrian war who are remaking themselves after the parents separate.
	7 PM – 8 PM	*Immigration: History, Politics and Policy – Sage 213 In this panel, faculty from multiple disciplines will offer background and perspective on immigration. Paul Croce, professor of history, will discuss the historical role of immigration in American society. Alan Green, associate professor of economics, will discuss immigration in the context of market economics. Finally, David Hill, professor of political science, and Steven Smallpage, assistant professor of political science, will discuss the political nature of immigration today.
Thursday, April 12	4 PM – 5 PM	*Presentation: Immigration and Business – LBC 124 Join Professor Lou Paris as he shares his personal story of immigration and explains the importance of immigration in the business world.
	6 PM – 7:30 PM	*Workshop: Undocumented Students facilitated by HOPE CommUnity Center – LBC 124
Friday, April 13	1 PM – 3 PM	WORLD Fair (interactive celebration of cultures and national heritages) – Flagpole area in front of the CUB This interactive and fun event is open to the Stetson community. Students, faculty, staff are invited to share their backgrounds from their home country or culture through creative and engaging displays and demonstrations. Food, activities, music, performances, and perhaps even some giveaways are all things participants can expect.
Monday, April 16	1:30PM – 2:30PM	*Lifting Our Lamps: Protecting the Human Rights of Refugee and Migrant Individuals, Families, and Children – LBC 044 Join Dr. Shankar-Brown as she discusses the global refugee and migrant crisis. This workshop will consist of interactive dialogue, reflection, exploration of issues through the arts, a collaborative education-activism project, and meditation.
	4 PM – 5 PM	*Panel: Gender and Migration – Sage 213 Migration is at the heart of today’s globalization. Find out what students in Gender Studies explore in their senior seminar on gender and migration. Learn how gender, sexual identities, race and ethnicity intersect to structure contemporary processes of immigration and border-crossing.
Tuesday, April 17	Throughout the day	*Research on immigration at Stetson Showcase – multiple locations